Open library area

Classroom adjacent to library

Quiet reading area

School libraries are typically used for quiet study and reading. Any sound will be a distraction, with even whispered conversations easily overheard.

Junghwa Middle School realized that requiring silence would create a boring atmosphere, unattractive to students. Instead, it wanted to create a cafe atmosphere where students felt welcome and happy.

Integrating a carefully designed Soundmask system in the library had the dual purpose of allowing students to study in peace while other students could converse. Soundmask's unique open area system contributed to the comfortable acoustics of the space.
