

Transducers and acoustic discs suspended from the ceiling

Office and meeting rooms adjacent to student lounge

Study Melbourne Student Centre

Student lounge

The Study Melbourne Student Centre is designed for students to access free support, information and contacts to help them enjoy living and studying in Victoria.

The client wanted to create acoustic privacy between the meeting room, office staff & student lounge area on the ground floor. The walls separating the spaces were not full height to avoid having to install costly supplementary air conditioning systems within the office.

Soundmask installed an open area system with acoustic discs to that allowed administrative staff to work without distracting noise from the student lounge area.
